I live in Norfolk, therefore you might wonder why my husband and I are concerned about Sizewell C. The answer is we have [REDACTED] grandchildren, they or their children's children will have to deal with the problem of waste created by nuclear power. Nuclear is an extraordinarily expensive form of power and should be phased out not added to. Everyone including those with small UK pensions like us will be asked to fund a French state owned company EDF, where is the sense in that. This company has yet to successfully commission a nuclear power station, why should we have any faith in this one being a success. Then there is the environmental impact on a site of very special significance, we are supposed to be preserving these places for future generations and the wellbeing of our planet as well as the birds, animals, plants and people adversely impacted by this scheme. When will the government look at better use of wind, solar and in particular wave power. We are an island with sufficient of all of these, put the investment into these areas and say NO TO NUCLEAR and in particular this very damaging plan.
