Dear Planning Inspectors

Last chance lagoon ♀

Please do not approve the building of another (replacement) nuclear power station on this stretch of coast.

The east coast geology is particularly vulnerable to attack by eroding waves and rising sea levels. Only a fool would build something so long-term and costly in such a weak position. Please visit the coast at Essex, Suffolk, Norfolk, Lincolnshire, Yorkshire, Humberside and Northumberland yourselves, as I have done, to witness this speedy and devastating erosion in action.

Instead the Government and energy companies should invest in research and develop harnessing power from the tides and damaging waves all along the (east) coast of the UK instead.

Yours faithfully
Alison Wood
