Dear Catherine,

Thanks very much for sending the ES chapters through. The archaeological assessment is fine and the proposed mitigation is suitable. A palaeoenvironmental sampling would provide an interesting dating sequence as well as identifying if peats survive and to what level of integrity.

Regarding the conditioning, it would be better to have a condition attached that would allow for a watching brief but with contingencies to allow for resourcing and time regarding groundworks and post-ex. We usually recommend a condition following the Sec 23 model in WO 60/96, the one which reads "No development shall take place until the applicant, or their agents or successors in title, has secured the implementation of a programme of archaeological work in accordance with a written scheme of investigation which has been submitted by the applicant and approved in writing by the local planning authority". This would provide for a detailed and targeted mitigation and is more appropriate in this case than a straight watching brief.

Best wishes,
Judith
