To whom it may concern

I am helping to campaign against a huge, destructive Solar Power Station planned to cover Graveney, Nagden and Cleve Marshes.

I am not against Solar Power, at all, but this plan is very big, very unsafe and far too close to thousands of people.

As I understand it

900 acres of valuable carbon collecting marshland - (home to over 70 species of birds and animals including the rare endangered European eel) covered in solar panels, 25 metres wide x 3.9 meters high x 2 1/2 miles deep.

The 120 Lithium Ion, unproven container sized Batteries are in the 20 acres marked by a khaki box with diagonal stripes. If they catch fire, which could be caused by exposure to salt water, they will release into the air Hydrofluoric gas, which falls as Hydrofluoric acid. The experts recommendation is for the Batteries to be placed at least 15 kilometers from human habitation.

Canterbury, Faversham, Graveney, Whitstable, Herne Hill, Sheppey, with a combined population of 155,000 are within a radius of 15 kilometers .

There is too much at stake for this to happen.

Please consider my objection to this.

Thank you

LIZ HAROLD
