I would like to register my protest at the proposed Cleve Hill Solar Park.

In the South East of England so much development is taking place in the building of housing. There is so little suitable land for wild life, particularly in marsh land such as Graveney Marshes. Inland development would save these valuable marshes for future generations to enjoy the diversity that wild life gives our children and their children.

The additional worry of the massive battery power so close to existing houses that could cause damage to people's health and the possibility of long term illnesses should negate such a risk being considered.

This proposed area should be conserved as a treasure to our society for without respect for our diminishing natural areas for wildlife and plant life our very existence is threatened. The very scale of this proposal is totally unacceptable.

Vivienne Jones.
