Consultation both in respect of permissive routes and potential local financial contributions to the counties, including when and where that money might be spent.

Sunnica's King's Counsel response opting out on permissive routes was stated to be on the basis that they do not currently own or control the land so no permissive routes may be incorporated. So why, I wonder, do they have three potential routes proposed? Also, the same could be said for most of Sunnica's entire project where they do not currently own or control the land.
