I am sure in the fullness of time allowing this proposal to go ahead will be seen as a huge mistake and error of judgement.

In these days of increased climate change causing huge damage to countries around the world it is inevitable that these events are going to cause significant problems to the worldwide food supply which will result in availability issues and therefore increased costs.

England needs to significantly reduce its reliance on overseas sources of food and increase its inhouse food production to help alleviate these inevitable problems as well as reducing the current huge food miles. Just achieving the latter of course will significantly reduce green house gas generation therefore reducing climate change.

Allowing almost 2800 acres of mainly prime agricultural land to be lost to a sea of silicon is absurd and will no doubt be seen as that in the years to come.

Do not allow Sunnica to go ahead
