

I cannot express how confusing this process has been for the ordinary man and woman affected by these proposals. What is clearly one huge Solar project has been divided into many small portions with different deadlines on different dates in difficult places and at difficult times. I want to desperately believe that how this all affects us is genuinely important to those making the decisions and the issues we raise will be taken very seriously, but from the start, there has been misinformation, wrong dates and deadlines and confusing agendas as we all try to grapple with the multitude of projects, some with similar names, unique reference numbers and interested party numbers!!! The lived experience of those affected is that the decisions regarding the scope and area were made long before those actually affected were consulted followed by procedures made overly confusing and therefore excluding.
