

we are the we are the owners of the land where the cables cross the river Trent, it is grassland that has not been cultivated in living memory and floods at least once a year and is under water as I write this, one of our fears is the the grass that is dug out to make the trench will not be replaced with a grass mix that can withstand flooding and once flooded it will wash away the soil and leave a dip which will never be properly restored. We have several other reservations mainly about the hassle factor which is difficult to put into words and feel that we are being bulldozed into making a decision before the planning has been approved,the money makers will take their cut and move on, leaving us with the mess to clear up.
