

After using every penny I had to purchase a cottage two years

[REDACTED] I would never have purchased the property if I had known this was a possibility, it never showed up on any of the searches, this will wipe thousands off my house I won't be able to afford to sell the property as I will lose too much. This is not right that these things are permitted in our prime countryside. Over the past few months the weather has been very unpredictable thus these awful things would not have produced any electricity. Who is going to compensate me for my loss on the property value and for the hardship I will endure from the awful noise??
