

These multiple solar project applications are causing an intolerable strain on the sanity, stress levels, health and time and energy of the vast majority of our local residents and communities. I, myself, feel extremely worried and fearful for the future of our communities and local environment.

At least two people in favour of the projects in the relevant representations are anticipating benefitting from considerably more than 30 pieces of silver for their land use.

This is profiteering poor and simple and has no place in a long term energy plan. The environmental destruction alone for the foreseeable future is not worth the poor return on energy let alone the loss of food production land, safety fears from fire risks and so many other factors.

I speak as a fourth generation farmer of grade three land at Willingham by Stow. Farmers selling out to solar projects are taking the easy way out although the pressures on agricultural production and farming in general may account for this betrayal.

I refuse to comment on specifics with this project as it should not be happening at all but my lifestyle and that of future generations will be severely impacted if not destroyed by these solar projects should they be allowed.

For goodness sake, form a viable energy policy which includes rooftop solar, warehouses and new buildings and brownfield sites long before rural and agricultural land is despoiled for ever. Oh, but that's not making vast amounts of profits for, more than likely, overseas investors is it?

I haven't even mentioned the curse of Chinese involvement as I'm guessing that is the source of most solar pv panels and equipment. In the present political world of turmoil would you even consider giving them more power over us? Pun intended.

Please throw out these proposals. I pledge to fight against them as much as I possibly can.
