

I cannot reiterate strongly enough how unpopular this scheme is, along with others.

Apart from the unsightly aspect of thousands of acres of our countryside covered in glass panels, there is the fact that much needed farmland will disappear forever, along with our country lanes.

Solar panels are known to be inefficient and are not worth the loss of our countryside.

Lincolnshire is becoming an industrialised county and its residents are easy pickings, given the low resident to acreage ratio.

This is without the effects on house prices on the area, assuming we could sell in the first place - who would choose to live amongst these atrocities?

We will fight with everything we have in order to stop this folly.

Not in our back yards!
