Dear Sir,

In any decision making process please consider the huge impact that a project of this size is having on local communities and the wider population.

There are many solar projects either recently passed or awaiting consideration in this area, the accumulative effect of which would be devastating for local people, food production and our countryside.

I understand the value of green energy projects but at what cost to the people and landscape of Lincolnshire and Nottingham, and the vast areas of agricultural land that will no longer be the important food producing fields that they are today.

Yours hopefully
Ella Collins
