I am most concerned about the size of Solar farms planned. They are out of all proportion and will devastate the landscape. Solar panels should be placed on roofs of buildings not on the ground.

It is reprehensible to place panels on viable farmland which will be taken out of use for 30 years and then become brownfield sites.

At a time when the UK population is growing at an unsustainable rate we need this valuable land to grow food and graze animals. Food security should be a much higher priority.
