

RWE stated that they had reduced the size of the development, following a review using a number of criteria. I ask, if these criteria are applied to the remaining parts of the development, what would be the assessment outcome. As an Engineer, with experience of developing designs for new installation, I am used to conducting risk assessments at various stages (milestones) as the design progresses. This includes assessments at the earliest stages of design. The assessments consider and rank various Health, Safety and Environmental aspects. I would expect RWE to have conducted such (or similar). I have requested further information from RWE, recently, but not received anything yet. RWE RWE conducted these assessments and what were the results.
