We would like to register our objection to the planned Tillbridge Solar Project.

We live in the area impacted by the above.

All the glossy PR activity and marketing campaign put out locally in favour of this development by the company sounds fantastic, but we ask that decision makers take independent expert advice in renewable energy to explore all the company's bold claims are factually correct.

This development has got negative consequences which we feel have not been considered. For example, how will this impact locally on the mental health of those affected. How will such a large scale development impact on the local environment both short and long term. We are not against solar. We already have it installed in the village on top of both residential and farm building with no objections. Our concern is the scale. Valuable farm land will be sacrificed with no tangible guarantees. In today's world of food miles and global supply issues etc. This plan seems very short sighted when looking at how other parts of the world have sensitivity embraced the rapid evolution in renewable energy. We are not experts in this field but feel it is questionable that the loss of such valuable farm land on this scale is necessary to produce and store energy in a country so low down the world sunshine map when other options more suitable to our climate could and should be explored.

We therefore ask again for this project to be reviewed independently by experts in renewable energy for factual accuracy, to make clean energy the success possible and not just become the next Horizon Post Office scandal in years to come.

Many thanks for your time.

John and Gwen Eastwood.
