

The decision to situate solar panels on agricultural land is ridiculous. The country needs food security and solar panels should be installed on existing buildings or brown/industrial land. The highway infrastructure is not designed to accommodate the flow of heavy traffic which will impact existing wildlife as well as small villages in surrounding areas. Whilst I am not against renewable energy, indeed I fully support it, the scale and size of this solar farm is unprecedented and ill advised. A solar farm of this size is would have a negative effect on surrounding countryside and those who live therein. I would passionately urge your company to change your plans.
