Local residents, cross party councillors and MPs are united against the Aquind proposals for the interconnector project.

If allowed to proceed it would cause chaos and devastation across the eastern side of our densely-populated island city. Wildlife, allotments, and a key arterial thoroughfare in and out of the city would be massively affected, together with residential areas north of the city and up to the proposed sub station at Lovedean.

How can we place any confidence in an impartial decision when Kwasi Kwarteng has shown bias towards Aquind in widely publicised correspondence, now shared in the media during recent weeks.

What confidence can we have in a company that has limited funds registered, yet proposes to bulldoze ahead with no scruples and with donations made to many MPs in the Conservative party?

The recent Panorama programmes and Pandora Papers have highlighted these huge concerns.

Aquind, no thank you.
