We've already made clear why we do not want Aquind and its proposals anywhere. Not in Portsmouth, not anywhere.

Is this fresh hell of a subsequent attempt caused by the seemingly toothless nature of the UK's regulation authorities that you try again, hoping we'll simply have to cave in? The current UK government disgusts me on so many levels but they acknowledged our objections last time. I can only hope they'll do so again and refuse you.

Go away. Leave Portsmouth and its people in peace.
