Hi,

Having lived near to the Blackwall tunnel flyover since 1999, it's clear to see how much heavier traffic is now. So strange that the decision is to suck in even more traffic to an already overcrowded route.

Anyone can see you need more crossings along the Thames between Blackwall and Dartford. It's a travesty that the proposed crossing at Thamesmead has never been built.

As an aside, I simply cannot believe more money is being spent on yet another consultation as to whether we need another crossing for cyclists to get across the Thames. Please, please, please don't send any more 'men in suits with clipboards' to monitor traffic through the Greenwich Foot Tunnel. Thousands upon thousands of new homes have been built both sides of the Thames and over 150,000 people now work in Canary Wharf. So sad it requires expensive consultations to highlight what is blindingly obvious to anyone with the gift of sight.

Cheers

Paul
