Dear sir

I object most strongly to the closure of the byways around Stonehenge. These ancient byways have been highways for the people through the ages. Open to all and not a select few. The whole thought that a group should shut some just for their profit and ease of control is abhorrent. They should be open to all without fear or favour.

I also object to driving a dual carageway through one of England's most archilogcal valuable and vulnerable sites/areas. It is bound to cause distruction of archilogcal sites whether plan or not.

How can we as stewards of this countryside justify our actions to our children and their children.

Is nothing sacred.

Yours sincerely

Antony Wingrove
