Good afternoon,

I believe very strongly that the proposed plans for the A303 at Amesbury are, frankly, ridiculous!

I completely agree that the traffic situation is problematic, however I believe with the current IPCC report in mind, a massive infrastructure overhaul is not only counterproductive, but also defeats the whole point of the road. By the time this is complete I believe lorries and motor homes will be reduced in numbers, given the impending fuel crisis.

Also I fail to see how this new project will not end up in a similar bottle neck situation, given that it ends at a roundabout!

What I would like to see happen is a simple widening scheme, where the section that drops from the dual carriageway to a single lane is extended, having two lanes all the way down.

I believe this would not only reduce the bottle neck dramatically, but also is much more cost effective and far less damaging to local ecology. I fail to understand why this is not an option, unless it's simply the landowner getting in the way.

One Amesbury residents local opinion.

Thankyou for reading this.
