You have asked for our opinions on this subject,

I don't know the ins and outs of this project but as a lover of Stonehenge i feel i must do my bit to protect it.

If another road must be built then it needs to be as far away from this site of national importance as possible. Also the environmental impact needs to be offset by the planting of trees.

I'm really not sure about the tunnel idea as its construction could damage the site. Thinking about the issues that the Channel tunnel has gives some insite to emergency services situations and things like that should have a huge impact on any decisions.

To conclude, its all about weighting up the needs of the travelling public against the needs to preserve our heritage and environment for future generations.

I don't envy you this decision as you will never please everyone but i hope that you are able to make a good decision.

Regards
Mrs Ruth Hopkins
