No and No and NO NO NO NO.

I have known Stonehenge since I was about seven.

There is an intangible atmosphere almost gone. This development will take the last faint vapour trail away. Our shamanic ancestors knew something we have currently forgotten. There is current and new research on this matter.

That is apart from spoiling this green and pleasant land yet again (a bridge too far will very soon be beyond any reasonable repair) regimenting and mechanising the atmosphere and the people in it.

I am English despite the name.

Leave the site alone.

I leave no compliments no gracious words of parting. I hope to see the just pleas of people and organisations attended to.
