Subject: Vandalism of the Stonehenge site
Date: 31 March 2022 17:49:47

I am shocked that the digging of a tunnel past Stonehenge is still being considered. So much more is being discovered about Neolithic activity around Stonehenge, not confined to the site itself. I believed that the idea of the tunnel had been so discredited that it could not now go ahead. Sadly, it seems all the evidence is being ignored. We should be aiming to reduce road traffic, not making it easier. The cost in terms of carbon emissions as well as taxpayers money are too high for this to go ahead.

Please think again about entering into this shocking development. So many alternatives could be considered without vandalising this precious landscape.
