Really quite incredible. Here we have situation which is based on a bad idea so, rather than acknowledge this and find an alternative, digging your heels in and carrying just carrying on regardless.

The fact that Stonehenge is a world heritage site and may lose this status if this scheme proceeds is irrelevant. Our heritage is irrelevant. Our natural environment is irrelevant. This government cares not one jot about any of these things. The only good thing about all this is that actions such as this will hopefully discredit the government (even more), and hopefully will contribute to its downfall.

That day cannot come soon enough.

So, alternatives are available. They always are. And lets be honest, if they make the greedy even more rich, then that cannot be a bad thing. Can it?

I therefore request that suitable solutions be explored and implemented in order to put and end to this disgraceful proposal.
