Subject: World Heritage Site / Stonehenge roadway plan - concern from a Canadian
Date: 01 April 2022 18:25:00

Good day,

Have been following this controversial roadway plan for a little while now. It seems you have been presented with other options that are not intrusive, destructive and disrespectful to this historically important natural wonder, as well as all the other artifacts of this site – including the ones you cannot see as they are underground and unknown.

If the issue is slower traffic because people are slowing down for “a free look” – how about planting a row of low shrubs / trees along the route to block the view from just above average height of vehicles? Good for the environment, safer driving, extremely low maintenance required.

Is shaving minutes off a commute really worth potentially destroying something you can never hope to put right again? What are the consequences to not moving forward with the road? Nothing except for money that can be remade. If this project is allowed to continue it will create a dangerous precedent for other formally protected areas. Please help do the right thing and either stop this project or do the due diligence to find an acceptable option that does zero harm to this site.

Thank you for your consideration.
