Dear Sirs,

I want to register my strong opposition to the proposed scheme to put a road tunnel under part of the Stonehenge site.

I can not understand how anyone can even contemplate putting the needs of road traffic above the importance of this ancient site. The plans would cause irrecoverable damage to an internationally important archaeological site, and almost certainly result in it losing it's World Heritage status.

With the ongoing climate emergency we should be doing all we can to reduce road traffic, not building larger roads to encourage it.

Yours sincerely,

Susan Christian
