To whom it may concern

I live in Wiltshire and occasionally use the A303. If I wanted a, theoretically, faster route I would use the M4.

The highlight of my return journey is the sight of Stonehenge. I'm sure a lot of motorists feel as I do and are happy to reduce their speed at this point. The view from the A303 is magnificent, well worth a slight delay

As the name suggests it is an 'A' road not a motorway. Therefore drivers should expect a slower route. It would be a tragedy to desecrate this landscape by building a tunnel. I sincerely hope it never happens.

Yours sincerely,

Caroline Deakin
