Dear Sir or Madam

I have perused the report of the Advisory Mission and the Response.

I do not understand why HMGovernment chooses to ignore the very clear message coming from Independent Specialist Examiners, UNESCO, previous Transport Secretaries and various Courts - that it hasn't got this right yet.

I understand the usual need to balance transport infrastructure plans against cost and side-effects this is surely an example of where there is really no sensible alternative to doing the best you can, Stonehenge being a site of national and international importance. Much of the current plan can be built on.

Please just bite the bullet and move rapidly to a plan clearly acceptable to all interested parties and then get on with it.

Best wishes

Yours sincerely
