To the Secretary of State for Transport

I have read the UNESCO advice for this particular Road Plan and I wish to state that I support the UNESCO Report findings and sincerely hope that your Department will take the issues they raise fully onboard when making your decision.

Stonehenge is a totally unique world site. It's importance is incalculable for the Study of Neolithic History not only in the UK but Worldwide. To an Historian like myself I am personally horrified that my government would do anything which could damage the surrounding area of Stonehenge just to facilitate a Road development. The Monument must be a priority over the Road, NOT the other way round.

I hope you will carefully consider the actions you are about to take.

Sincerely

L Erica Johnson, BAHons Medieval History, Birmingham University.
