Subject: comment on the current proposals by National Highways
Date: 26 September 2022 13:01:28

This comment from National Highways merely sets out once more its earlier arguments. These proposals have been heavily criticised by the Govt's. own independent advisors as well as the UNESCO World Heritage site committee. Even the previous secretary of state for transport admitted their overall effect would be adverse.

If the new Secretary of State decides to pursue this policy we ask that before proceeding she should ensure there is a formal public examination where views for and against can be openly aired.
