Subject: National Highways submission re UNESCO's Advisory Mission's report

Dear Madam,

Further to your invitation to comment on the response of National Highways to the abovementioned report, I would be grateful if the following points could be taken into consideration:

- the UNESCO report advised that the western limit of the tunnel should be extended to the World Heritage Site boundary;
- National Highways has simply reiterated many of the arguments it has raised previously to justify a scheme which is clearly unacceptable to:
 - Government's independent specialist examiners,
 - UNESCO's World Heritage Committee, and
 - the former Transport Secretary himself who agreed with the examining panel that the scheme would be 'significantly adverse' overall

Historically, heathenry is a part of the native culture and tradition of the Kingdom of Britain. She who reigned over us, HM Queen Elizabeth II, had the title of 'Bard of Wales' bestowed upon her in a heathen ceremony when she was Princess Royal. On the day of Her Majesty's funeral, I noted that advertising was suspended on British TV. Upon noticing this I said to myself 'My God Mick, something is still sacred in this human world.'

The henge is a sacred place to me. The site is a holy place in the Kingdom of Britain. I ask that it not be interfered with.

yours faithfully

Michael Johnson
