Dear Edwin

Thanks very much for your email.

Although I work for Historic England, I am the planning archaeology adviser to LB Havering and confusingly I am more akin to a local government County Archaeologist than someone who provides our national body's normal statutory advice on designated heritage assets and their settings.

Will and his colleague Neville have sent PINS the attached letter from our Cambridge Office in response to the Rule 6 instruction from the PINS over a Statement of Common Ground on heritage matters.

I have shared the letter with my London and South East office colleague Mike Dunn (copied in), who would normally co-ordinate the London and South East office's work on such a document.

Mike has confirmed to me that he does not seek to comment on the scheme from a statutory heritage advice point of view, and I understand therefore that there will not be an SoCG for the scheme created with Historic England. This is because neither the East of England, nor the London and South East Development Advice Teams have identified significant issues that fall into their advice remits.

However, I will be providing input on undesignated archaeology still. I propose to do this through my established channels with LB Havering. Therefore, archaeological heritage will figure in the DCO process but it will be included in the Havering/Highways England SoCG.

I hope this makes sense. Mike, would you would be OK with being on Edwin's spreadsheet should any further clarifications on the corporate HE position be needed?

Best wishes
