I have always objected to the Lower Thames Crossing, as the road would be within 200 metres of my property.

I did not agree to this even when it was only going to be 2 lanes each way and further away the plan has now been increased to 3 lanes each way which will increase pollution to the residents who have properties so close to the crossing, also the noise and disruption it will cause to the people living so close to this project seems to have been dismissed altogether. on the

Also the road on the original plan was much further away, but as I understand it due to objections from the residents in Shorne who would have been closer to the road ( though not as near as 200 metres).

Their objections were upheld and the road was moved closer to the residents of Riverview Park Estate. (WHY)

Also the road will be much closer to Thamesmead Secondary School and Thong Lane Sports Centre.(which has a park for young children ). Bringing a 6 lane motorway so close to where children play and go to school is outrageous and unacceptable on every level.

I have always strongly objected to this project and I am aware that when counting the objections a number of them were discounted, as it was deemed that people who joined together to object were counted as a group and not individuals so the number of objections were reduced.

Who has the right to decide that an individual's objection can be dismissed just because that was what suited their purposes.
