Good Morning,

When the northern legs of HS2 were cancelled the funds that were so released were potentially allocated to the overdue A1 dualling north of Morpeth by the PM. This project has been shovel ready for at least 3 years but no further indication of when this is likely to start.

Is the Government serious in its intention to improve the A1 in Northumberland ever?

I do not understand the Govt reluctance to get it started and finished. If this was in the south East it would have been done years ago.

I would like a reply please with a confirmed start date!

Peter Towers
