Dear Sir/Madam

Night flights would be completely detrimental to the regeneration of Ramsgate as a town to live and holiday in. I live under the flight path. When planes flew before, the house rocked when they came in to land. I believe that night flights would prevent the population of Ramsgate from sleeping properly and would hinder the development of the many children growing up in the town. The town is thriving because more families have moved here, some to escape the pollution and crime in London. At the moment people come because they like the tranquil seaside town and the schools on offer. Please do not turn back the clock.

Yours faithfully,
Anette Redvers-Mutton
