Manston airport ( known as Kent international ) has been here for over 100 years and its never had the backing of anyone who can spend money to improve Air travel and supply a good commercial freight service.

Now our government are making progress getting more countries to trade with us. Were not talking belly cargo we need a good supply from all around the world.

Manston will make a very good place to land goods away from mainly passenger airports and concentrating on freight to feed the country.

I think the previous owners were only interested in passenger flight and some cargo. And it would appear to me that some of the companies advising the inspectorate are supporters of the London air ports.

I don't understand why London should get a third runway when we have a perfect long runway sitting here doing nothing. It needs priority to get up and running ASAP

The Residents of Thanet and the surrounding areas were used to aircraft and there are a lot that miss them. I expect most of the people against are not locals.

Aircraft are now getting much better regarding Noise & pollution, they have got to be..

Manston played a large part in protecting our country in two world wars and the cold war and should remain operational .

This is My view and hope it makes sense
