1 Introduction

- 1.1.1 This document forms Appendix 13.9.2 of the Environmental Statement (ES) prepared on behalf of Gatwick Airport Limited (GAL) for the proposal to make best use of Gatwick Airport's existing runways and infrastructure (referred to within this report as 'the Project').
- 1.1.2 This document sets out results of sensitivity tests which have been included in the assessment in ES Chapter 13: Air Quality (Doc Ref. 5.1). Note all locations are provided in cartesian coordinate system, in British National Grid.

2 Uncertainty in emissions over time

- 2.1.1 The EFT provides the latest predictions for vehicle emission rates and vehicle split composition data up to 2050 for England (not London) roads and up to 2030 for London roads. Therefore, for the 2032, 2038 and 2047 assessment years, the corresponding emissions data were used for England (non-London) roads and for London roads 2030 emissions were used. The data post 2030 was provided by Defra to help support carbon assessment and it is important to note that uncertainty in the emission factors exists in the data from 2030 to 2050. However, with the known policy requirements to reduce emissions from transport such as the Transport Decarbonisation Plan (Department for Transport, 2021) being in place in that period freezing all emissions at 2030 is considered overly conservative. This approach was discussed and agreed with stakeholders as noted in ES Appendix 13.3.1: Summary of Stakeholder Scoping Responses – Air Quality (Doc Ref. 5.3).

2.2 Transport Decarbonisation Plan

- 2.2.1 The Department for Transport (DfT) have released their future plans and policy for decarbonising the transport network in England, Decarbonising Transport (Department for Transport, 2021). Whilst the policy is aimed at carbon emissions it will have benefits for other environmental areas including air quality.
- 2.2.2 The plans contain a number of future scenarios for decarbonisation and for the purposes of air quality three which would benefit air quality were reviewed, these were the Technology, Vehicle Led and Model Balanced Decarbonisation options. The mileage splits per vehicle class were taken for 2038. The emissions from the EFT (v.11) were compared for major roads in the study area and the difference between the EFT emissions and the TDP plan shows a significant reduction in NO_x of around 75%.
- 2.2.3 The reductions predicted in the Transport Decarbonisation Plan would result in reduced emissions compared to those assessed in the ES.

3 Slow Fleet Transition

- 3.1.1 The air quality assessment has been based on estimates of how the aircraft fleet will transition over time, based on assumptions around airlines' fleet procurement programmes and business models. The 'central case' used in the main assessment is based on what is considered at time of writing to be the most likely rate of fleet transition. A further set of forecasts have been developed for a scenario that assumes that the rate of transition of Gatwick's airline fleet is slower than in 'the Northern Runway Project (NRP)' and 'Baseline' Cases - referred to as the 'Slow Fleet Transition' cases. The number of passenger and aircraft movements are the same as in the 'NRP' and 'Baseline' Cases. A sensitivity test for the slower fleet transition case has been undertaken for all modelled future scenarios.
- 3.1.2 Table 3.1 to Table 3.3 present the modelled results for human receptors for the full first year of opening (2029). Predicted NO₂ concentrations at all receptors are below the air quality standard and the Project would therefore not create exceedances of the air quality standard in these areas. There are no exceedances predicted for annual mean PM₁₀ or PM_{2.5} concentrations. No significant effects for air quality are anticipated for the full first year of opening assessment year as a result of the Project for the sensitivity test carried out.
- 3.1.3 Table 3.4 to Table 3.6 present the modelled results for human receptors for the interim assessment year (2032). Predicted NO₂ concentrations at all receptors are below the air quality standard and the Project would therefore not create exceedances of the air quality standard in these areas. There are no exceedances predicted for annual mean PM₁₀ or PM_{2.5} concentrations. No significant effects for air quality are anticipated for the interim assessment year as a result of the Project for the sensitivity test carried out.
- 3.1.4 Table 3.7 to Table 3.9 present the modelled results for human receptors for the future assessment year (2038). Predicted NO₂ concentrations at all receptors are below the air quality standard and the Project would therefore not create exceedances of the air quality standard in these areas. There are no exceedances predicted for annual mean PM₁₀ or PM_{2.5} concentrations. No significant effects for air quality are anticipated for the interim assessment year as a result of the Project for the sensitivity test carried out.

4 NO_x to NO₂ compared to Clapp and Jenkin Approach

- 4.1.1 The air quality assessment has used the Clapp and Jenkin approach to calculate the amount of NO_x converted to NO₂ in the atmosphere. Defra (Defra, 2020) provide a calculator to calculate the total NO₂ from modelled road NO_x. As discussed with consultees following the PEIR it was agreed to provide a sensitivity test to assess the road portion of NO_x using the Defra calculator (v8.1). The purpose of the test is to determine any difference in the outcome when using the different methods for converting NO_x to NO₂.
- 4.1.2 Another method using the Defra NO_x to NO₂ calculator (v8.1) has been followed and results presented in Table 4.1 as a sensitivity test to show the difference in conversion methods. The largest change in concentration between with and without scheme concentrations was 0.6ug/m³ at receptors EHO 1, EHO 2, R177-180 using the Clap and Jenkin conversion. This is a change of 1.2% of the annual mean objective of 40ug/m³. The maximum concentration in the with scheme scenario was 37.6 µg/m³ at R48 using the Clapp and Jenkin conversion. There is only one receptor where the impact descriptor changes between using the different conversion methods. H113 is a negligible change using the NO_x to NO₂ calculator, it is a slight beneficial change using the Clapp and Jenkin method. There are no changes in significance, this demonstrates there is very little difference between the outcomes of each method and would not result in any change to the conclusions.

5.1 Glossary of terms

Table 5.1: Glossary of Terms

Term	Description
AQAL	Air Quality Assessment Level
AQMA	Air quality management area
CARE	Central Area Recycling Enclosure
Defra	Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs
EPUK	Environmental Protection UK
IAQM	Institute of Air Quality Management
LAQM	Local Air Quality Management
PM ₁₀	Airborne particles that have a median diameter of 10 microns
PM _{2.5}	Airborne particles that have a median diameter of 2.5 microns
µg/m ³	Microgram per cubic metre
NO ₂	Nitrogen dioxide
NO _x	Oxides of nitrogen
