Dear Jeremy/Gavin/Mark,

This evening I have taken my usual route home from work which took me down the A5 west of Gailey. Behind me was a huge 44tonne AO.com lorry.

In rush hour, as we approached Stretton aqueduct, the lorry moved into the middle of the road to get underneath.

The traffic had slowed right down as a car was waiting to turn right into the boat repair yard just after the aqueduct. Highly dangerous and not acceptable!

How many more times does it have to be explained that this stretch of road is not suitable for these HGV's?

Regards
Anita Anderson

Dear Mr Singleton,

Please find attached 2 pictures taken in Station Drive Four Ashes yesterday. The lorry trying to turn around ruptured a gas main therefore the fire brigade had to be called!

A complete farce.
